

SEAAIR 2016 16th Annual Conference

“Academic and Social Engagements in Higher Education”

Rationale of the Conference Theme

It is almost a universal claim by HEIs around the world that their Visions and Missions are founded on Teaching, Research and Community Service. Claims of excellence in these vary from HEI to HEI and in total they are still feeble. The reason is simply the lack of commitments to this trilogy of honor. It is therefore high time for Higher Education practitioners to throw this into the ring of discussions. One measure of such commitments is engagement defined simply as meaningful interfaces between all stakeholders in each of the trilogy pursuits.

A key question is “Has the HEI fully explored or exploited their true engagements with society or communities to bring about more successful and conscientious engagements?”

This Conference therefore is pioneering such imperative and as such is aimed at looking or re-looking the engagements of the academics, the HEIs with the students, the stakeholders, the society and the communities from both the social and academic engagements aspects. In turn it will act as a catalyst for an even more significant development in Higher Education.
